Editorial

This issue of the ISSWOV newsletter is appearing after the interesting and enjoyable 8th conference in Warsaw in June 2002, and before the forthcoming 9th conference in New Orleans in August 3-6, 2003. On behalf of all the ISSWOV members I want to thank those who are making extensive efforts in order to facilitate this conference: Sanjay Menon, from Louisiana State University Shreveport, and Bella Galperin, from Rollins College, the co-Chairs of the Organizing Committee; Zeynep Aycan, from Koc University, the Scientific Committee Chair; and Alison Konrad, from Richard Ivery School of Business, the ISSWOV President.

This newsletter is devoted to the New Orleans conference and contains messages from the ISSWOV president, Alison Konrad, the Program Committee Chair, Zeynep Aycan, and the Organizing Committee co-Chairs, Sanjay Menon and Bella Galperin.

Information is included about the New Orleans conference, the host city, and the conference hotel, Hotel Monteleone. The call for papers for this conference is also included. Please note that the deadline for submissions of abstracts is February 1, 2004, and for submissions of full papers is May 15, 2004.

For those of you who are less familiar with ISSWOV, information about ISSWOV is supplied, with its officers and regional representatives.

The last pages of the issue are two forms: Registration Form for the ISSWOV 9th international conference in New Orleans and the ISSWOV Membership Form. The 9th conference Registration Form should be sent to the Organizing Committee. Naturally, it is cheaper to pay for the conference in advance than on site. ISSWOV members are entitled to get reduced fees for the ISSWOV conference. The ISSWOV Membership Form should be sent to me with the membership fee of US$40 for the years 2003-2003. This form should also be used for updating personal information (e.g., address, e-mail).

An electronic version of this issue appears in www.mba.biu.ac.il/isswov. In addition, you can find information about the New Orleans conference in the conference Web site www.lsus.edu/ba/isswov. We plan to update this site in the coming months so that relevant news (timetable, papers, workshops, tours, etc) will be easily accessible.

I am sorry to inform you of the untimely passing of Prof. Abraham (Rami) Sagie from Bar-Ilan University, the Program Committee Chair of the last ISSWOV 2002 conference at Warsaw, and the former ISSWOV Secretary-Treasurer. He was a respected figure in the field of Organizational Behavior and a good friend of many of us. He fought bravely with his severe illness to the end. We mourn his recent death at the early age of 55. We will miss him very much.

I hope to meet all of you in good health at the forthcoming New Orleans conference. Meanwhile, I wish you all a happy, healthy, prosperous and peaceful year.

Shmuel Stashevsky, ISSWOV Secretary-Treasurer
A Message from the President

In 2003/04, the study of work and organizational values continues to be a vital topic for management and applied psychology. As demonstrated by the scandals at Enron, WorldCom and others, the values that business leaders express and build into their organizational cultures have a critical influence on both ethical behavior and financial performance. ISSWOV remains the only international professional association devoted to the study of work and organizational values. Our work provides an important lens through which to view this critical aspect of work and organizational behavior.

Our upcoming meeting in August 2004 will be the first time we have linked our meeting geographically and temporally to the U.S. Academy of Management conference. ISSWOV will meet in New Orleans on August 3-6, 2004. The Academy of Management conference will begin on the afternoon of Friday, August 6, and will last through Wednesday, August 11.

The linking of ISSWOV with the Academy of Management will provide our members with the opportunity to benefit from the strengths of both organizations. ISSWOV provides us with a very focused series of sessions on work and organizational values and offers the opportunity to develop an international network of colleagues whose interests closely match our own. The Academy of Management provides a much larger and more diverse forum of topics and the opportunity to network with a new set of colleagues, many of whom do not ordinarily attend ISSWOV. For the price of one plane ticket plus a few extra hotel nights, ISSWOV members can gain the academic benefits of both conferences.

We hope that linking ISSWOV with the Academy of Management will also enhance ISSWOV’s visibility in North America. We believe that by advertising our Call for Papers widely, we will be able to attract a substantial number of submissions from North Americans who have never attended ISSWOV before, and whose interests and work will contribute positively to our organization.

I wish to extend my deepest gratitude to Sanjay Menon, Chair of the Organizing Committee, and Bella Galperin, Co-Chair, for their hard work in pulling together the fine arrangements we’ll enjoy in New Orleans. I am also deeply grateful to Zeynep Aycan, Chair of the Scientific Committee, and Shmuel Stashevsky, ISSWOV Secretary-Treasurer and Newsletter Editor, for the hard work they have done and will continue to do for the upcoming conference. All of us are also deeply grateful to all of the members of the Executive Committee, the Scientific Committee, and the Organizing Committee for their support and service to ISSWOV.

I also wish to express my sadness at the sudden and untimely passing of Abraham Sagie. Rami’s record of scholarship in the area of work and organizational values speaks for itself. He has published dozens of articles in our field in such outlets as Human Relations, Human Resources Management Journal, Journal of Applied Psychology, Journal of Applied Behavioral Science, Journal of Occupational and Organizational Psychology, Journal of Organizational Behavior and Personnel Psychology. In addition to his important scholarly contributions to our field, Rami contributed countless hours of service to ISSWOV. He recruited dozens of volunteers and raised thousands of dollars of financial support for ISSWOV as well as selflessly contributing his own efforts and abilities to the health and growth of our organization. I, and I’m sure all of us who had the great pleasure of knowing and working with him will always remember his unique insights, his integrity, and his warmth and openness to others. He will be greatly missed.

Alison M. Konrad, ISSWOV President

A Message from the Program Committee Chair

We are very exciting that the next bi-annual conference of International Society for the Study of Work and Organizational Values (ISSWOV) will be held in New Orleans in August 3-6, 2004. This year’s overarching theme is “Ethical Work Values and Behavior for Global Competition”. Ethic has always been a pivotal value and guiding principle in individuals’ lives; now it becomes a key issue also for organizations. We are in the era where ‘good business practice’ is almost synonymous as ‘ethical business practice’. Organization adhering to values including ethics and social corporate responsibility are able to attract and maintain better workforce, establish international partnerships, receive strong public support and, as a result, make better business. However, despite such emphasis on ethics, almost no day goes by without revealing unethical behavior of organizations and their leaders all around the world. There is still a long way to go towards creating ‘clean’ organizations free from corruption, discrimination, pollution, and fraud. Clean organizations mean clean societies. We, as social and management scientists, can contribute to understanding the ways in which organizations approach ethical issues in domestic and international business activities. We can help organizations in their quest for effective handling of ethical dilemmas. This is certainly no simple task, because there are vast variations among individuals and across cultures in how ethical issues are perceived and responded to. This makes our job both a challenging and an exciting one. We invite you to take this challenge and join forces towards studying factors leading to (or inhibiting) the creation of ethical values and behavior in organizations.

Submissions are encouraged on work values and behavior in a wide variety of areas, including (but not limited to) leadership, work-family conflict, cross-cultural perspectives, motivation, human resource management, diversity management, organizational change and development, corporate governance, and organizational culture. Submissions may be in the form of oral presentation, poster presentation, or symposium. The deadline for conference submission is February 1, 2004. Specific guidelines for submissions are outlined in the call for papers section.

ISSWOV Conferences are mid-size meetings (approximately around 200 participants). This provides an excellent opportunity to interact with colleagues all around the world and exchange ideas in a collegial environment. We are also proud of the fact that after each conference, selected papers appear in several publications including Book of Proceedings, Special Issues in Journals, and Edited Book Volumes.

Being the Program Committee Chair of the 9th ISSWOV Conference is an honor and a challenge, especially because I will be succeeding our dear colleague and friend late Rami Sagie, who put together an excellent program in the last conference. I will not be able succeed in my role without the support of the distinguished scholars who kindly agreed to be the members of the Program Committee. I thank them all. Of course, no conference is successful without high-quality submissions. Hence, the success of the conference will ultimately be yours!
We are hoping that you will be able to join us on August 3rd, 2004 for the ISSWOV Conference in New Orleans, Louisiana, USA. We are certain that you will have a rich and stimulating intellectual experience in the charming city of New Orleans.

New Orleans, known as the “Paris of the Americas”, is a cosmopolitan city with a French flair. With its rich French, Spanish, and Confederate history, New Orleans is a destination city with many enjoyable activities, great music, and great food. New Orleans is the home of many important attractions. Some of these attractions include: the French Market and Farmers’ Market Historic--a marketplace on the Mississippi; the New Orleans Museum of Art-- galleries that focus on Art of the Americas, Asia, Africa, Oceanic art, Louisiana, and Europe; and the Aquarium of the Americas-- one of the most modern aquariums in the world which includes water exhibits of the Caribbean, the Amazon rainforest, Mississippi River and Gulf of Mexico.

We believe that ISSWOV members will be delighted with the city as well as the conference hotel location. The conference will be held in the Hotel Monteleone. The hotel is located in the French Quarter, home to the famous Bourbon Street and heart of the cultural heritage of the city. Known as a historic and literary landmark, Hotel Monteleone will continue in its tradition and host our conference on “Ethical Work Values and Behavior for Global Competition”. Given the importance of ethical behavior and corporate social responsibility in organizations today, ISSWOV members will have the opportunity to engage in scintillating conversations. Furthermore, in line with the ISSWOV tradition, members will have the opportunity to meet colleagues from around the globe and possibly collaborate on research projects in the future.

ISSWOV 2004, however, will differ from previous ISSWOV conferences. First, the conference will be held in August. While the ISSWOV conference has historically been held earlier in the summer, the scheduling of ISSWOV in August will allow ISSWOV members the opportunity to attend the Academy of Management Conference, which will be held in New Orleans from August 6-11, 2004.

Moreover, ISSWOV will not be the same without our colleague, the late Rami Sagie. Rami was truly a complete individual who represented goodness in humanity. He was a wise, warm and caring man who made a difference in this world. Rami was a great friend and a true scholar in the field of management. In addition to advancing the discipline, he contributed to the development of ISSWOV. He will be greatly missed.

Sanjay Menon and Bella L. Galperin, Organizing Committee Co-Chairs
The 9th ISSWOV Conference at New Orleans, August 3-6, 2003

Ethical Work Values and Behavior for Global Competition

The 9th Bi-annual Conference of the International Society for the Study of Work and Organizational Values (ISSWOV).
August 3-6, 2003, Hotel Monteleone, New Orleans, Louisiana, USA.
Sponsored by the College of Business Administration, Louisiana State University Shreveport and Richard Ivey School of Business, University of Western Ontario.

The ninth bi-annual ISSWOV conference will be held in the crescent city of New Orleans, Louisiana, an event and location that will be hard to forget. We come to New Orleans after a string of successful conferences in Budapest, Prague, Karlovy Vary, Barcelona, Montreal, Istanbul, Jerusalem, and Warsaw. As in previous conferences, you can expect informed presentations and vigorous scholarly debate, all in a relaxed, supportive, and collegial atmosphere. There will also be plenty of opportunities to network and socialize.

The theme for the conference will be Ethical Work Values and Behavior for Global Competition. We feel that this is a particularly relevant theme given the recent, well publicized ethical lapses involving well known individuals and global corporations. As organizational scholars interested in work values, we can make an important contribution in this area which will be of practical significance to industry, academia, and society at large. Besides ethics, our conference will continue to feature research on work and organizational values broadly defined.

Those planning to attend the 2004 Academy of Management meetings will be pleased with the opportunity to combine travel and stay for the two conferences. Our conference ends the day the Academy pre-conference activities start. You will able to stay on for a few more days at our specially negotiated low ISSWOV conference rates. New Orleans, known as the “Paris of the Americas”, is a cosmopolitan, destination city with many enjoyable activities, great music, and great food. We hope you will not miss this wonderful opportunity.

Venue and language
All conference activities will be held at the Hotel Monteleone, New Orleans, USA. English will be the official language.

Hotel Monteleone is located in the French Quarter, home to the famous Bourbon Street and heart of the cultural heritage of the city. Known as a historic and literary landmark, Hotel Monteleone has been servicing tourism since 1886. It is currently in the midst of a 3 year, $ 22 million renovation. It has 600 beautifully appointed rooms, three restaurants, two lounges, rooftop fitness center, heated outdoor pool and full service business center. The Hotel has over 20,000 square feet of Class A meeting and banquet space some with breathtaking views of the Mississippi River.

Conference proceedings and publications
The conference proceedings will include full papers and abstracts. Continuing in the tradition of the last two conferences, selected papers from the conference will be considered for publication in a book or in special issues of leading journals.
Registration fees

Registration fees for the conference include participation in all scientific sessions, conference kit with proceedings, lunches and coffee breaks, welcoming reception, French Quarter night tour, gala dinner, and a half-day tour of New Orleans.

ISSWOV, the International Society for the Study of Work and Organizational Values; was founded in Budapest, 1988, by the participants of the first International Conference on Work Values initiated by Prof. Dov Elizur, an organizational psychologist from Israel, and Prof. Istvan Magyari-Beck, from the Budapest University of Economics. Prof. Elizur was nominated as the first ISSWOV president in Budapest, 1988.

The organization aims to advance the study of work and organizational values and related aspects of the organization; to encourage the exchange of ideas and interaction among scholars engaged in the study of work and organizational values; to collect, generate, preserve, decipher, and disseminate data and information relating to work and organizational values, and to encourage and initiate publications concerning research on work and organizational values.

ISSWOV organizes an international conference every two years. The first international conference took place in June 1988, in Budapest, Hungary. The subsequent international conferences were in Prague, Czech Republic (1990), Karlovy Vary, Czech Republic (1992), Barcelona, Spain (1994), Montreal, Canada (1996), Istanbul, Turkey (1998), Jerusalem, Israel (2000), and Warsaw, Poland (2002). The forthcoming conference is planned to be in New Orleans, USA on August 3-6, 2004.
The organization publishes an internal newsletter. Also, ISSWOV publishes the proceedings of the international conferences.
